

Holds Key to Lawson Mystery

ORVILLA HUNNEMAN

Back Bay girl whom police are eager to question in regard to disappearance of John Lawson, Jr., dry agent. She informed Lawson's wife that he had been killed by bootleggers. She is believed to be in New York.

BEAUTY HAS 17 DIE IN ARKANSAS FLOOD

Miss Orvilla "Bella" Hunneman, Back Bay stage beauty believed by police to be in New York, is said by authorities to possess information which may solve the mystery surrounding the disappearance on March 1 of John Lawson, Jr., youthful prohibition agent.

Three weeks after Lawson disappeared Miss Hunneman asked a woman known to her and to Mrs. Lawson, to tell Mrs. Lawson that Jack Lawson had been murdered by bootleggers.

The mutual friend, however, was afraid to tell Mrs. Lawson, and Miss Hunneman herself told the bride of a few months her husband was the victim of a bootlegger's vendetta.

Soon after "Bella," the daughter of Joseph Hunneman, a photographer whose divorce case was heard last year, disappeared.

OPERA STAR NICHOLS AND GEMS MISSING

Lydia Lindgren, the "Swedish Nightingale," Vanishes While Wearing $14,000 in Jewels

By International News Service.
New York, May 15.—Lydia Lindgren, grand opera singer, sometimes referred to as the "Swedish Nightingale," is mysteriously missing, her husband, Paul Quirze, operative reporter, reported to police today.

Quirze said his wife failed to keep a business engagement with her lawyer, Mrs. Anna Hochfelder, yesterday afternoon. He had driven her to the attorney's office in the financial district.

He told police he was at a loss to explain her absence. He said there had been no domestic trouble.

Lydia Lindgren is thirty-four years old. She has sung with both the Metropolitan and Chicago opera.

WORCESTER SAVANT A SUICIDE

Leaves Note to Son Confessing His Failure and Stages Tragedy in Clark Library

Worcester, May 15.—Arthur Gordon Webster, professor of Clark University, today sent two bullets crashing through what was reputed the highest developed and keenest brain in New England—his own.

Despite the fact that he had the reputation of being the most versatile man of science in the State—a savant of many branches and master of all—a man with a string of degrees at the end of his name longer than the name itself—this learned professor, in a note written just before he killed himself, characterized himself as a failure.

The suicide occurred in the library of the university. It apparently had been carefully deliberated. The professor went today to the chief of police and asked permission to carry a gun. He said he wanted it for use in his laboratory, as he was forced to work until late at night.

WICH MEN AID DISCARDED WIFE OF MAURICE MAETERLINCK

GEORGETTE LEBLANC ENDS WAY

Maeterlinck's Former Wife Made into a "Company" and Will Tour Country

By CORIN RICH
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, May 14.—Georgette LeBlanc, the woman who gave up Maurice Maeterlinck to a young girl because as his wife she could not any longer make him happy, told me today the story of another sort of romance that has come into her life.

A romance of art—of business this time.

A romance into which she has thrown her great heart as ardently as ever she did into her private and picturesque life in Belgium.

"I am going to sing to America and I am going into business," she said with graphic enthusiasm. "Next season I shall tour this wonderful country and give it what I call my art. I have always wanted to do that because I love America."

With Americans have come to her with money.

And into the big eye, fringed even as heavily with black, sprang something of fire, the light of ambition about to be realized.

HER PET POODLE.

We were sitting in the perfumed, dimly lighted theatre-study of Madame LeBlanc on Washington square. A few steps up was the little stage with its grand piano and heavy setting, where she has just completed a month's series of recitals.

Her jeweled hand occasionally caressed "George Washington," the smallest of poodles, so named because he and the great American had the same birthday.

Mrs. LeBlanc came to America in November, 1921, immediately after the Maeterlinck episode, to "forget" she lived in seclusion in the Washington square place.

Then the old, old audition behind up again to give her art, her dramatic and operatic art, to America.

"But how was I to get started?" she said to me. "An artist cannot go up Fifth avenue with a, what do you call it, a megaphone, telling the world she is here. No, I could not do that."

HITS UPON SCHEME.

So this woman, who is known from one end of Europe to the other for her singing and her dramatics, hit upon a scheme to let American art patrons know her, too.

She inaugurated a series of recitals in the little hall, where she was determined to establish recognition she wanted—the recognition that had somehow grown since her initial concert in New York not so long ago.

For thirty-five consecutive evenings she sang to those who came. Many people came—business people, personal friends, music connoisseurs.

The "company" is to be known as "Art Direction, Georgette LeBlanc, Inc." It is composed of five wealthy New York art lovers, who have agreed to see that money does not stand in the way of Madame's progress. There is to be an offer here.

FIVE IN DANGER IN $25,000 FIRE IN MAINE

Waterville, Me., May 15.—Five destroyed buildings valued at $25,000 on the stock farm of John Thibault at 2 a. m. today. Fire rages in the house narrowly escaped, with a few personal belongings. All livestock was saved. Roads were impassable for fire trucks and firemen dragged the hose half a mile through the fields to reach the blaze.

PRESIDENT HARDING GREETED HOUGHTON

Washington, May 15.—Albion B. Houghton, American Ambassador to Germany, came to Washington today to confer with President Harding. He was the first of the three American envoys who came back to the United States last Saturday to report to the President. The others, George Harvey, Ambassador to Great Britain, and Cyrus E. Woods, former Ambassador to Spain and newly appointed Ambassador to Japan, are expected to see the President within the next few days.

LYNN PAIR WED SECRETLY IN PORTSMOUTH

A romance which had its inception in a Lynn shoe factory, culminated in the secret marriage at Portsmouth, N. H., May 8, of Miss Louise Timmons, eighteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Timmons of No. 3 Adams street, Lynn, and Albert Blount, nineteen, of No. 63 Post street, Lynn.

The couple returned to Lynn Saturday and informed their parents of the marriage. The girl had left a week ago, ostensibly on her vacation, and had been driving at Amesbury, where he is employed in a shoe plant.

The couple first became acquainted several months ago, when Blount was employed in the making room and the girl in the stitching department of the Gregory & Reed Shoe plant in Lynn. They will make their home in Amesbury.

DECLARES THAT 'ASBESTOS KING' IS UNDER MRS. HAYES' 'THUMB'

MRS. BUTLER HINTS AT AN "AFFAIR OF THE HEART"

Beauty and charm of Mrs. Hayes, admitted that Charles H. Maudlin, eighty-nine-year-old head of the "Asbestos Trust" had a "crush" on Mrs. Hayes and had given her presents.

"There was only one person who seemed to have control over Mr. Maudlin," added Mrs. Butler. "That was myrtle Hayes. It was rumored that the old man had given her jewelry. I asked him about it and he confessed that he had given her a gift or two. I can readily believe her fascination for him was such that he would have engaged in almost any enterprise she suggested."

CALLS HIM "INGRATE."
Mrs. Butler several times during the group of old promoters with which she and Myrtle Hayes were associated.

"The old ingrate," she exclaimed, "has been more to Walter Clark and myself than he can ever repay. We never trusted him. Quite the contrary."

Oswald H. Hayes, husband of Boston's woman promoter, when interviewed at his country estate in Danvers, Mass., said:

"I most certainly will not go to New York nor will I make any attempt to communicate with my wife. I have never received the slightest message from her since this thing happened. She evidently feels that she can get along without my help. I have never had anything to do with her wife's business problems. I have tried to be a sensible country gentleman. I am not the least bit interested in business."

CAUSE SPECULATION.
In financial circles of Boston and New York Mrs. Hayes' long period of separation from her husband has been a subject for widespread speculation.

Mrs. Hayes unwittingly acquired an indebtedness of $400,000 from the original promoters when she took over Chatham, Incorporated, to build a $200,000 factory here in the Brookline section of the Fenway.

Mrs. Hayes was amazed to learn of one big unpaid bill after another. The discovery staggered her and made her desperate, say those who Canada Steamship Corporation and the Transcontinental Corporation. Dr. P. Robinson, president of Dwight P. Robinson & Co., Clifford Culbert, president of the Mechanical National Bank of Boston, W. A. McKenney, president of McKenney & Waterbury, Grabow and Dillie.

APPROACHED MRS. HAYES.

While plans were in the embryonic state the Boston Hotel Corporation, a site near Park square, through serving its intermediary by the Boston Hotel Corporation, through the New Haven Railroad from and the fact to Mrs. Hayes.

CONTRADICTION CLAIM.
Mrs. Hayes learned to her dismay that W. A. McKenney, contractor and builder of Brookline, had a claim of $100,000 against her. McKenney, a young architect, who drew all the original plans, had a claim of $100,000 out of which he had received $1,000 and had a claim of $100,000 and owned had not been paid.

Another interesting disclosure today was the fact that Mrs. Hayes in March admitted to John H. Maudlin, leading real estate broker of Boston, that she had up to that time raised $100,000. This was when she presented a check for $25,000 to Mr. Maudlin, to discuss an amount of a contract to supply cast iron for the building of the Brookline Hotel.

REFUSED HER NOTE.
Maudlin's statement contradicted those made by Mrs. Hayes and her husband after her arrest on second degree larceny indictment in New York, that she did not raise more than $100,000.

"Simply as a matter of business caution," Mr. Maudlin said, "I told her I would not cash her note. Mr. Schaub's signature. She said that would be impossible, as Mr. Schaub was just about to sail for Europe. I told her a telegram or radio message would reach him."

"When she saw I was insistent she took the note back," Maudlin said. "She was in a hurry, Mrs. Hayes was not the sponsor of Chatham, Incorporated. The idea of a smart hotel on a site overlooking the Fenway, between the Hotel Trustees and Empire in Boston and different hotels owned by the United Fruit Company."

BIG MEN IN SCHEME.
Mr. Maudlin is president of the Consolidated Mangrove Company, Inc. was treasurer. Among the original promoters of the original venture were Timothy E. Byrne, former president of the New Haven Railroad, and president and director of the Industrial Finance Corporation, and director of the Transcontinental Corporation, and the fact to Mrs. Hayes.

It was after the crushing defeat of the Brookline Hotel plans in Park Square by the Stater interests.

But Mrs. Hayes set her teeth and fought an uphill fight. Bills continued to pour in on her. The brokers who exploited the plan under both administrations have not been paid. It was Charles Dillworth who did the brokerage business for Grabow & Dillie. He has not been paid. He also accompanied Mrs. Hayes on many of her business conferences.

BECOMES DESPERATE.
Mrs. Hayes was apparently forced to desperation to resort to the sale of large diamonds bearing what Schaub claims are his forged indentations. Schaub went abroad in March and Mrs. Hayes set busy with the notes in an effort to pull Chatham, Incorporated, out of a dire not altogether of her making.

It was this last ditch stand on her part that resulted in her arrest in New York. This history ought to be made public in justice to her regardless of the merits of the charges leveled against her in New York.

Mrs. Butler Demands Manville Retract.
New York, May 12.—"I have served an ultimatum upon Charles Manville demanding that he retract his attacks upon me and publicly apologize. His statement about me is a misrepresentation all through. Unless this retraction and apology is forthcoming today, I shall file a libel suit."

Special Notice.
One of the first changes made was to substitute the Langens Company of New York for the W. A. McKenney of Boston. This resulted in the W. A. McKenney making prompt claims for $100,000. Then Architect Robert put in a claim for $25,000, and others equally large. If I'm mistaken the law firm also has a bill that has not been squared. Parker Thomas & Tice, architects of No. 177 State street, then engaged to submit a new set of plans.

"Mrs. Hayes was ignorant of this middle man and her associates assumed control of Chatham, Incorporated. It was a bitter pill for them to swallow after the crushing defeat of the Brookline Hotel plans in Park Square by the Stater interests."

The 100% Baby

"She was awarded first prize on August 14th last year for the prettiest girl baby under two years in the Galveston baby parade."

E. F. Fiel

LAST year they had a baby parade on the fourteenth of August in the city of Galveston, Texas. It was a gala occasion, a fete to the children of the city. Everybody turned out to see it. The "best babies" of the whole city competed for honors, and prizes were awarded for beauty and health.

The first prize for the prettiest baby girl under two years of age went to Betty Jane Fivel, a lovely dark-eyed miss in a rose-covered cart. Betty Jane Fivel is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Fivel, 1509 21st Street, Galveston.

As usually happens, Betty Jane is as healthy as she is beautiful, for good looks in young children is so largely dependent on health. Betty Jane is a 100% baby in both health and looks, for in a test taken at the John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, she scored 100% in all respects, with three pounds in weight to the good.

What did Betty Jane's parents do to give her such a perfect foundation of health? Mr. Fivel insists that it is due to feeding her on Eagle Brand Condensed Milk, nationally known and used for generations as a baby food.

It seems that when Betty Jane was five weeks old, and her mother was unable to nurse her, the family physician ordered Eagle Brand for her. "She has gained wonderfully and never has had a stomach disorder," writes her father. "Ours is a 100% baby and we owe it to Eagle Brand."

Many parents have had these same gratifying experiences in rearing their children on Eagle Brand Milk.

Eagle Brand is actually more used as a baby food than all of the others which are on the market, combined. Mother's milk is the best thing for babies generally. But, if for any reason, you cannot nurse your baby, Eagle Brand is the natural normal food for him. Eagle Brand is pure whole cow's milk, simply combined with sugar by a special process. This process breaks down the hard casein in the milk—which is the indigestible part. Eagle Brand is exceptionally digestible. It contains the vitamins, too, which science has now discovered are vital to growth.

Eagle Brand Condensed Milk is safe and convenient—both. Only the purest and best ingredients go into it. There it is made absolutely air-tight, germ-and-dirt-proof by being packaged in a sealed container. When you buy it you know it is pure.

With Eagle Brand you need never run the risk of having to change the baby's food. It can be ordered in quantity so that you always have it on hand, for it keeps indefinitely in the unopened cans. You do not even need ice. You can carry it with you safely or buy it anywhere you go.

Eagle Brand makes a healthful beverage for the baby who has passed the bottle-feeding stage. If you start your baby on Eagle Brand, keep him on it. The same qualities which have made thousands of healthy babies, will promote health and normal growth, will build bone and muscle and supply energy in the older child, too.

DETROIT MAKES MILLION IN FIRST YEAR RUNNING STREET CARS

HOLDS FARE DOWN TO 5 CENTS

Pays Highest Wages, Increases Service and Equipment and Still Shows Profit

Detroit, Mich., May 15 (By Associated Press).—Detroit's municipal street railway, one year old, today has in the twelve months of its existence paid $1,000,000 on its purchase price, net all other running expenses, set aside $4,000,000 for a sinking fund and shows a million dollars profit.

The profit is not in the bank, however. It has been used for betterments and extensions of the system, which ranks as the largest municipally owned street railway in the world.

The figures are contained in the annual report for the organization, made by Mayor Doremus. The figures are approximate, but they are said by city officials to be substantially correct.

Following are some of the statistics presented:

Increased trackage to 373 miles, increased number of street cars to 2,600, cars maintaining daily schedule, 1,425; gross income, $19,000,000; net income, $1,000,000; number of passengers carried, 475,000,000; of the passengers carried, 25,000,000 paid five-cent fares, the rest were transfer passengers, each of whom paid one cent for the transfer privilege.

In addition to its other achievements, the railway pays the highest wages to its 600 employees, with two exceptions, of any such concern in the country. The rate for platform men here is 32 1/2 cents an hour for the first eight hours and 75 cents an hour for overtime after eight hours for men who have been in the service one year.

Those who have been in the service less than a year receive a slightly smaller rate. Other classes of employees receive pay commensurate with those engaged in industrial fields.

Detroit is one of the few cities in the country with a population of more than 25,000 where the 5-cent fare prevails.

The city had an embargo municipal street railway system for several years, having operated about three miles of trackage in opposition to the Denver Union Railway. On May 15, 1922, the latter's property was taken over and merged with that of the municipal lines in a unified system.

WITNESSES IN POISON PEN CASE HIDE

By Universal News Staff Correspondent.

New York, May 15.—Difficulty of getting witnesses to come forward in the investigation of poison pen letters, which wrecked nine homes, caused one suicide and sent several persons to the insane asylum, is creating daily.

Several have disappeared from New York. Society people of Philadelphia and elsewhere, who were at first reluctant to come here, and many have daily refused to do so.

While friends of George Maxwell, leader in musical circles, are the author of the letters, the district attorney's office declares the evidence against Maxwell is conclusive.

It was learned today that shortly before Maxwell sailed for Europe he was very solicitous lest a young woman he had known four or five years should be involved in trouble.

NOW IN BOSTON.
The woman was reported to be Mrs. Marion Hildreth, who is now in Boston. When Maxwell made a complaint four years ago in connection with his receipt of scurrilous letters, she was one of those questioned and was quickly exonerated.

It is understood that before Maxwell left the country, he went to Joseph T. Van Loan, a broker, and said:

"I wish that little woman gave me information. I wish you would let me know as I want to do anything I can to help her."

WITNESS BEFORE JURY.

This was before Allan A. Ryan presided the letters attacking his wife. Mrs. Hildreth has also received one of the poison letters. It has been learned. She has been a witness before the Grand Jury in the present inquiry. Mrs. Van Loan said today:

"I have known Mrs. Hildreth since she was ten years old and she is not the kind of woman who would write such letters."

Cleveland, May 15.—His mother's prayers rising above the bustle of the court room marked the opening of the trial of Herbert "Babe" Abbot of Boston on the charge of slaying Charles J. McFadden in a death during a drinking party at a club.

Abbot, who was the belligerent housekeeper, was stabbed in the back. Abbot, a cripple, disappeared and was arrested in Arizona. Abbot's wife was also in the court room.

The case is being heard before Judge John H. Superior Court. Abbot pleaded in several jurors before the panel was selected. The scene of the crime was visited by the jury.

Combining Won't Rid Hair of Dandruff "Use Liquid Arvon"

The only way now to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you don't get it again. To do this, get Arvon, which is a powerful liquid soap, apply it at night when retiring, use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone and less of three more applications will completely dissolve and wash off in one matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find that all itching and itching will stop, and your hair will be soft, shiny and free from dandruff. Use Arvon and you will find it a hundred times better than any other dandruff remedy. Use Arvon and you will find it a hundred times better than any other dandruff remedy.

It brought him untold misery; yet only he, himself, was to blame

HE had neglected his teeth so long that he was actually ashamed to visit his dentist. And like so many people, he kept putting it off.

Finally he became so sensitive about the appearance of his teeth that in conversation he habitually distorted his mouth in an effort to hide them from view.

A reasonable personal effort on his own part—consulting his dentist, conscientious use of his tooth brush and the right dentifrice—might have saved him this humiliation. But he was the kind of person who even neglected these ordinary practices.

Any dentist will tell you that the consistent use of the correct dentifrice will improve the appearance of your teeth. Listerine Tooth Paste cleans teeth a new way. The first tube you buy (25 cents) or the free sample (see coupon) will prove this to you.

You will notice the improvement even in the first few days. And, moreover, just as Listerine is the safe antiseptic, so Listerine Tooth Paste is the safe dentifrice. It cleans yet it cannot injure the enamel.

PROF. WEBSTER OF CLARK ENDS HIS LIFE

A sense of duty, perhaps, seems to be the motive for the suicide. Professor Clark before he ended a life that had been one long term of study, research and of exertion, wrote a note to his son, then, "Have been a failure."

After from another note, "I have ended the state of mind which prompted the act of self-destruction."

"Dear children—
For years I have been a failure. My research work is worth nothing. Everybody else knows it. Now I do."

Physics has got away from me. I cannot come back. Everything I have started has stalled. The students will not care and they will not put me out. Your mother will not see. She will get over this. Take care of her. Do your best and tell her the truth.

"With much love."

"PAPA."

But here is what he wrote:

Engineer

Inventor

Publisher

Physicist

Foremost authority on sound and auditory anatomy.

He could have turned his living to his hands as:

Machine

Carpenter

Wood-turner

Instrument-maker

Tinsmith

Glassblower

Lapidary

Plumber

Chair-maker

Typist

Or to several other crafts and trades.

This man who said: "I have failed as a physicist," was:

Professor of physics at Clark University.

One of twenty-two representatives chosen from eleven scientific bodies to constitute the new Naval Advisory Board in 1915.

Member of American Physicists Society and American Mathematical Society.

Holder of degree of doctor of philosophy from University of Berlin.

Head of his class at Harvard in 1885.

Inventor of a device to find direction of a fog signal, thereby minimizing the great menace of sea travel—fog.

He held a D. Sc. degree from Tufts and an LL. D. from Harvard.

He was awarded the Thompson prize of 5,000 francs in Paris in 1893 for experimental research on the period of electrical oscillations.

He was a Fellow of American Association for the Advancement of Science and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Foreign association honored this man as a physicist; his countrymen as a mathematician.

Dr. Webster's mathematical work, among:

Circles, Matrices of Poles, Royal Institute of Great Britain.

Life member of French Institute.

He was author of many treatises on electricity, sound and other physical and mathematical subjects.

JOHN F. BROWN

In addition to his scientific and mathematical activities he was an actor, reformer and politician.

He was educated in Newton schools. After graduating from Harvard he was in Berlin, Paris and Göttingen.

In 1880 he married Miss Elizabeth Adams, daughter of Dr. Adams, N. Y.

Upon his return to the United States after his studies abroad he became assistant professor of physics at Clark University. In 1901 he was made professor.

INVENTED THE SIGNAL.

He was appointed to the Naval Advisory Board, of which Thomas A. Edison was head, by Secretary of the Navy, Drexler.

It was in 1915, just as he was about to be elected to the National Academy of Sciences, that he ended his life.

For years he had experimented with every kind of a sound wave. The student would say that he hoped would be adopted for navigation so far as for signals were concerned.

was formed by means of a tuning fork arranged to turn in a resonator box of steel.

The receiving instrument consisted of a coil of wire placed in pairs with the small coils, together to catch the turn from the signaling machine.

His class connected with the receiving apparatus showed, by means of lights within, the direction from which the signal came.

Therefore, the scientist explained, mariners had been unable to tell

FOLLOWING close on the heels of the annual 100 horse show on Memorial Day, the annual equine event taking place today at the Millwood Hunt Club in Framingham.

Reginald W. Bird of Brookline is chairman of the committee in charge of the affair, which will be held at Waverly Farm, Framingham. Among Mr. Bird's committee are Messrs. Francis Adams, John P. Bowditch, Nathaniel W. Bowditch and E. Solter Welch.

The youngsters will have their chance to display an interesting feature of the show will be the pony jumping—as well as the steeplechase. In the class for hunters and steeplechase, the awarding of the Millwood Hunt Club Cup is expected to draw a keen group of competitors.

The ring. There will be other classes for polo, harness ponies and horses, draft horses, combination horses, saddle ponies and tandem.

The First Corps Cadets band will be on hand to entertain the occasion, entries for which close next Saturday. These may be made by applying to the show secretary, T. E. L. Kemp. The committee will see that proper transportation is provided for.

MRS. OLIVER AMES of Commonwealth Avenue and North Easton, has been spending a few days in New York at the Hotel Belmont. At the same hotel is Miss Amy Lowell, the poetess of Brookline, who recently gave a reading at Cambridge.

VERILY was the past week a red-letter one in the chertic young gentleman who wields the bow and arrow.

Just after Miss Agnes Means returned from fascinating travels through the Orient, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Means, announced her betrothal to Lieutenant John Hersford Wynd, Waller, U. S. N. of Virginia.

It wasn't especially surprising to hear that Miss Means—she is an attractive brunette—had chosen for her future husband a naval man, for she has spent much of her time in naval circles. Her uncle is Commander Lloyd Bankson, and it was with him, I believe, that she made her trip to Japan. Her father is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, class of '15, and the son of Major-General Littleton W. T. Waller of the regular army.

FILENE CALLS FOR FAIR DEAL TO LABOR

"Industrial democracy, which means that labor will have a voice in what it does with their own production, must and will come to the United States, but it will not come at present," declared Edward A. Filene before the members of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches, assembled at the American House in the first of a series of meetings to be held on Industrial Relations.

"The question of labor and the enormous increase of political power of the masses in the United States," continued Mr. Filene, "from my observation in Europe and especially in England, the most potential political influence in the world in the next few years will prove the labor party. The war has taught the workingman the lesson, we must settle with labor industrially before it reaches political power."

There is a note of hope in the recent industrial developments that a better relation has been attained by capital and labor since the war."

Lieutenant Governor, Alvan T. Fuller, another speaker, said: "Once we have all the executives interested in the human side of the workman, we will have gone a long way in eradicating industry unrest."

"It is up to the church to look after labor," declared Mr. Joseph Smith, representing Mayor Curley, "if we desire better conditions between the employer and the employee. Let the employer reduce his profit and put more of his earnings in the dinner bell of the employee."

K. C. Johnson, president of the Central Labor Union, declared that

Mr. Carson likes his wife's COOKING

Mr. Carson is distinctly a home man. He "likes his wife's cooking," as the phrase goes, and he is always generous with his compliments. This particular evening he was especially appreciative of the Coffee.

"I don't wonder that they call it The Universal Drink," he said thoughtfully. "Just think! While you and I are seated here tonight drinking our Coffee together, millions of other men and women in every section of the country are doing the same thing. Think of the cheer and added enjoyment that Coffee brings to the table of all those people! Why, it is almost indispensable!"

Mrs. Carson nodded. "I had never thought of that before, but you are right. Isn't it wonderful, too, to know that no family is so poor that it cannot afford Coffee? It is to me. I think of it every time I make up my order. Of all the things I buy, there is nothing that brings as much real, wholesome enjoyment at such small cost as Coffee."

SIX RULES

FOR MAKING BETTER COFFEE

- 1—Keep your Coffee fresh
- 2—Measure carefully
- 3—Use grounds only once
- 4—Don't boil your Coffee
- 5—Serve at once
- 6—Stir the Coffee-pot

LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP

Every mother's heart breathes a little prayer as her darling child morning trudge gaily and bravely away towards the adventures of a new day.

Guard them from a thousand possible dangers—from reckless drivers—well above all else, guard them from dirt.

Don't make the mistake of thinking that all soap is alike. Lifebuoy is wholly different from ordinary soap. The rich, wholesome lather of Lifebuoy does more than cleanse surface dirt—it goes down deep into every pore, driving out impurities and leaving its sanitary protection to guard against infection.

Lifebuoy is as pure and bland as soap can be made. Its palm-fruit oil and coconut oil keep the skin soft and glowing with health.

Your children can have but one protection perfect—scientific cleanliness. Train them to keep clean. Train them to purify hands and face with the regular use of Lifebuoy Health Soap.

Buy several cakes so you can have it wherever there is running water. Health is priceless, yet Lifebuoy costs little.

WOMAN CLIMBS SKELETONS AND TOILS AS ELECTRIC WELDER

EARN $30 A DAY AS SKILLED LABORER; ANOTHER WORKS AS A BRICKLAYER

New York, May 15.—Mrs. Katherine Nelson, who has a son, secretary and a daughter, eleven, has registered as the first steeplejill and expert electric worker in Greater New York, and perhaps in the world. She also believes she is the first woman to earn $30 a day as a skilled laborer.

Mrs. Florence Thompson, twenty-five years old, and a mother as well, is this city's first female bricklayer—the product of a school for artists conducted by her husband. Now she has become a journeyman, and when she works at the trade, which is whenever she needs a new hat or shoe, she draws the prevailing wage, $15 a day.

The story is one of a widowed immigrant who played a man's game and did a man's job, first as a means of existence and later in order that she might maintain her beautiful home and educate her children.

The other's story is of a wife who went "out" into bricklaying and with her avocation to make real the Long Island tangle of which she had dreamed.

In her native Denmark, eighteen years ago, Mrs. Nelson was a machinist's apprentice in her husband's shop. When he died she became stewardess of a trans-Atlantic liner and came to America.

She couldn't get a woman's job, so she became a machinist in the Erie railway shops and later an electric welder. The quality of her work soon led to her employment by an electric welding specialty firm.

Since then she has capped about on smokestacks, steamers, and water towers. In one instance, a high bridge job at Kingston, N. Y. she did a bit of welding and has refused to attempt it.

Just now Mrs. Thompson is erecting the var-colored brick facade of her home in Long Island City. When that is finished she will be waiting for a construction job for a day or two. She does not like to work steadily, for as she says, "I have my housework to do and baby to care for."

DEAD ENGINEER AT TRAIN'S THROTTLE

New York, May 15.—George T. Cunningham, engineer of the Long Island express from Greenvale to Jamaica, died suddenly at his post while the train was passing through towns and dangerous grade crossings at a terrific rate. He was discovered by the fireman, Matthew Carman. The latter investigated when he failed to hear the customary whistle for the Central help station.

DIVORCED WIFE AND DAUGHTER BARRED

New York, May 15.—Clamed as African and barred entry to United States because the immigration quota from Portuguese West Africa is exhausted, the divorced wife, the daughter and three grandchildren of Karl Casel, Brooklyn business man, are held on Ellis Island. Casel declared they had come merely to visit him. He wired President Harding and Cabinet members protesting against the detention.

200 I. W. W. ARE PUT IN LOS ANGELES PEN

Los Angeles, May 15.—More than 200 alleged members of the Industrial Union of the World were brought here from San Pedro and placed in a stockade at the Lincoln Heights police station pending a hearing on charges of criminal syndicalism.

At the same time it was said another hundred or so were on their way here from the same place. Bonds were provided for many.

ELKS ARRANGE NEWSPAPER NIGHT SHOW

Newspaper Night of Boston Lodge of Elks comes tomorrow night, beginning at 8 o'clock and running well into the morning.

Everybody knows that newspaper men, seeing the shows as they do, are pretty keen judges of entertainment. So, the able committee in charge of the entertainment part of the festivities have fairly stretched themselves to provide the best to be had.

Result—the theatrical talent which will entertain is going to put on the best show of this kind in the history of Boston Lodges.

Practically the entire cast of "Follies of the Day," the big musical revue at the Gayety Theatre, headed by "Rue" Snyder, the famous main-tinies comedian, and Miss Gertrude Hayes, Jr., featured girl of the company, will be there. With them will be other favorites of this company, including Hunter, Cole & Hunter; Miss Ethel Howard, prima trisse; Thomas Loneragan, character comedian. Acts from Shubert houses, Gordon's Olympia, Boston Theatre and Loew's Olympia.

Elks will be present from all sections of Greater Boston. The Newspaper Night promises to be one long remembered.

Falling Hammer Does Freak Stunts in Scollay Square

H. H. Higgins, carpenter, working on the fifth-story window ledge of the Scollay Hotel, dropped his hammer.

Before it hit the ground it tore through an awning, narrowly missing the head of F. H. Henry, of Dorchester, hit the fender of an auto, glanced off and knocked a case from the hand of Theodore P. Duquette, of Reading.

The hammer fell 50 feet.

PARENTS' PLAN FOR WEDDING

Portland, Me., missed a bang up society wedding, which was to be the feature event among June weddings in that city, all because Yolande Marston, twenty-two years old, Harvard '22, insisted on doing up in a dress suit and going through the agency of a church society.

Her and Miss Annabelle Chapin, former Wellesley girl, and daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Chapin, also of a prominent Portland family, slipped away quietly and were married while their two families were going ahead with elaborate preparations for the ceremony.

The bridegroom was attired in a cap and a shabby gray suit. The bride wore a traveling gown. They were no attendants.

And today they are back in Portland, after a honeymoon in Boston seeking parental forgiveness and blessing.

Their romance had its beginning while the two were students at Portland High School.

PREVENTS BLAZE, BUT FIREBUG ESCAPES

Providence, R. I., May 15.—The services of Patrolman Harry A. Backstrom of Precinct 4 prevented a fire in a building at No. 236 Washington street, and nearly effected the capture of the alleged firebug who has been terrorizing the community of late.

Backstrom saw a man acting suspiciously around the rear of H. J. Tuckersmith & Sons, dealers in fire fixtures, and at the same time noticed that a slight fire was blazing in a rear window. The promoter fled while the policeman was extinguishing the fire.

LONDON HOTELS OVERRUN WITH AMERICANS

London, May 15.—American visitors are invading London in such numbers that hotels and boarding houses are finding difficulty in providing accommodations for them. (From Associated Press.)

Many Americans are coming to London for the summer. It is estimated that it expects to bring 50,000 Americans this summer.

At Last! Melto—the Scientific Way to Reduce With Ease and Comfort!

IT'S the same story everywhere you go. So many people who are fond of comfort and ease and good things to eat pursue these comforts for a while—and never stop until they see themselves in a full-length mirror—or until they overhear a "friend" whispering to another "friend", "She's getting positively flabby,"—or until a sluggish liver and a sluggish brain give warning of something wrong somewhere.

And what happens then? Panic—and a mighty resolution to do something about it. They all do the same thing. Diet—until they feel that they'd rather be fat than have to pass up most good things that come to the table. Exercise—until they feel that they'd rather be fat than spend their lives twisting their bodies into all sorts of painful shapes. And then life becomes one continual burden. If they stick to their resolution faithfully—but who doesn't?—they may, eventually, get thin. But they also get flabby and old-looking—and never realize the effect it has on their disposition!

Melto reduces you where you want to reduce! You can be slim, graceful, comfortable and able to wear fashionable clothes "with an air"—by simply spending a minute a day applying Melto Reducing Cream on the place you want to reduce.

gists know about it and will tell you how good it is. It's a deliciously rose-colored cream with gentle reducing properties.

Melto melts away your fat! There's no sense in reducing all over if you simply have a double chin—no heavy bust, huge hips—or if only your abdomen is too large. Now, all fat is directly under the skin. Melto is rubbed into the pores and simply melts off the fat where you want it off—and nowhere else.

It's the easiest, pleasantest way to reduce—a truly scientific and sensible way.

Why not begin today—and take the big army of slender, graceful, happy men and women who have used Melto and know how remarkably efficient it is. Don't pass it up! An 8 ounce jar costs only $1. Every good drug store or health goods counter sells Melto. Buy a jar today.

NEW BROADCAST STATION OPENS IN NEW YORK

Today begins two important innovations of interest to radio fans. The new wavelength allocations recently outlined at Washington become effective, and the Broadcast Central station at Ansonia Hall, New York, holds its opening night.

The new station, operated by the Radio Corporation of America, takes the place of the old station WJZ, which was operated jointly by the Radio Corporation and the Westinghouse Company, and which has been dropped by the latter in order to conform with the agreement allowing three broadcasting stations to each of the three large radio companies.

Broadcast Central includes station WJZ, which will broadcast on 435 meters, at the same time that station WJY broadcasts on 495 meters. It is planned to specialize the program of each station, so that different types of entertainment may be heard on each wavelength. Programs of the two stations are given with the regular radio schedule. The new wavelength allocations affect principally the old 495 meter stations. Stations which used the 495 meter wavelength may retain it, or may ask for a new one, as they prefer. The new wavelengths are shown in the long distance schedule and the regular programs.

Shepard to Broadcast Aleppo Drum Corps

Radio fans stand in for an unusual treat tomorrow evening when the Aleppo Drum Corps, of 184 pieces, will broadcast a concert from WJAZ. The Shepard Street station. This is the first time such a vast body of musicians has been assembled for a radio concert.

Selections will be given by the full corps, the rifle and drum corps, the drum and bugle division, wind or orchestra division, trio of alto, flute and piano, saxophone and quartet, and piano solo.

The drum corps includes a percussion division of more than fifty men, with an evenly balanced group of trombones.

NAVY OFFICERS MUST WEAR MUFTI ASHORE

Washington, May 15.—Today all officers of the navy and Marine Corps at the Navy Department, and in all places other than naval and Marine Corps stations and ships of war, must appear in civilian dress when performing their official duties.

The order is compulsory. It brings to an end the wartime attitude of the navy and the Marine Corps, and is designed to relieve the mind of the public of any suggestion that the country is still in a war habit.

Uniforms will be worn by navy and Marine officers at social functions and may be worn on official occasions.

MAYOR DENIES LAST OF IRISH REPUBLICANS CAPTURED

The Judiciary of our county is of high type and I am not in a position to tell them what to do to those who break the law by getting intoxicated and also to those who are selling moonshine and bootlegging," said Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge in answer to a question put to him by the Rev. William MacNair, pastor of the Church Street Congregational Church, at a meeting in the Mayor's office.

The meeting was called as a result of a recent letter published by the Cambridge Citizens Alliance, asking for protection of Cambridge police of protecting the bootleggers.

NOT FOR MILLION.

No bootlegger or a man with $100,000 could buy me," further asserted Mayor Quinn.

The Mayor said that he felt that the police were doing their best to rid the city of liquor nuisances and that all of the "traps" had been cleaned out. He felt it was the duty of citizens to tell the police where liquor was being made. Then the police would arrest.

Sergeant Charles Preshe of the liquor squad said that the police would welcome the aid of the citizens and would investigate the complaint. He said that conditions in Cambridge were not so bad as in adjoining cities.

This is the second organization that has opened war on the police. A short time ago the Federation of Churches, a women's organization, asked the removal of Captain James Kennedy of North Cambridge. They claimed that he was not trying to rid North Cambridge of liquor runners.

There are two liquor squads in Cambridge. One in charge of Sergeant Preshe and the other in charge of Sergeant Robert Douglas. Douglas has been working night and day in the "tin brewery" of Cambridge, and hardly a day goes by without two or three raids in East Cambridge.

STRAY DOG BITES 3-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Three-year-old Jay Rogers of No. 15 Montebello road, Jamaica Plain, was bitten in the face by a stray dog which attacked her near her home. She was treated at the City Hospital for a wound of the eye. She will be given the Pasteur treatment. The dog escaped following the attack.

'THE BRAT' WELL PLAYED AT ST. JAMES

"The Brat," a whimsical narrative of the trials and tribulations which befall a nameless child of a charitable institution and the romance therein involved gave Adelyn Bushnell Little the first big chance to show her talent and she measured up to every inch expected of her.

"The Brat" is at the St. James Theatre. It was received with a raptur and enthusiasm of a receptive audience.

The role of the brat was colorfully, depicting chorus life with realism. The nameless child, who drifts into a show and then gets involved and laid into court on tramped up charge was admirably portrayed by Miss Rushnell. And with Walter (Robert), as the author sees it, to replace the performance was impossible. It is this author who sees "the best" in court. So far in her list the type he is looking for as the heroine of the novel, and he is right. He takes a look, who has tramped across rocky lumps, into his home, and then comes plenty of a new nation. No wonder it had such a run on the scene.

An Eye-Opener Romance in Which Is Depicted the Horror of What Drugs Do to Hollywood

BEGIN THIS STORY NOW

Two days after Kerry Rowan, a noted motion picture director, had visited the offices of the District Attorney in Los Angeles, Rowan was found shot to death in his home, with a bowl of poppies scattered on the floor beside him. Rowan has given much information about the drug trade in Hollywood, and he was a man of great influence. He had promised to risk death by testifying against those caught in the trade, for the sake of a clean Hollywood and because of his sincere affection for a young film star. Before this he has visited China and India where he has seen the effect of drugs on men and women both in high and low life. He becomes a movie director at Hollywood, then, and strikes the trail of the poppy again.

Poppy Trail Grows Hot

"THERE," he remarked to himself with satisfaction, "it that goes to the right place I fancy the poppy trail will become rather indistinct in this vicinity." The desk to which he had entrusted the faithful document was ill adapted for such responsibility. It was a flimsy French affair, artistic to the last degree, as became its surroundings, but fitted with a lock that could not be considered a barrier to anyone really bent upon getting at what was behind it.

Rowan appreciated the insurance of the desk, and was incensed at so much upon its fragility as to be upon the fact that so far as he was aware nobody knew there was anything of importance concealed in it. He thought he was mistaken. Things too private for a private secretary to handle were just the things Adolbert Vaughn had been sent to find out about. The next morning, when his employer had departed, Vaughn completed what work had been assigned to him and then made his first move toward the private desk by picking a handful of poppies in the yard.

The tiny garden had been planted before Rowan took the place or it is certain there would have been no poppies in it. The poppies were gay, year after year, however, and he was a man superstitious enough to have them die. Carrying his poppies into the bungalow, Vaughn selected a blue bud in the pantry, under the hastily disapproving eye of Tim May, and carried it to the great room with feminine care. Next he carried the bowl into the living room and set it upon the corner of the desk. Lamenting for a moment to make sure he was safe, he took a heavy pair of shears from the table close by, tried the front of the desk open, and began to make search of the pigeonhole. The tiny superstitious man was looking for some quick way to light. He opened it and ran his eye over its list of names.

Just at that moment he became aware that Tim May was standing directly at his elbow. The Chinaman had entered the room so silently that his appearance startled the secretary out of all presence of mind. Instead of continuing to look at the list as he should have done if he wished to appear innocent, he folded the paper as though it were something bad and shoved it back into his pocket.

"I was just looking for—"

"For some paper," he stammered.

"No, no," said Tim May, "where the boss are keeps it."

"Where the boss are keeps it?"

"Where the boss are keeps it?"

"Where the boss are keeps it?"

"You got plenty more you know," Tim May reminded him coolly.

"Yes, I know, but the ones in my room are no good," said Vaughn.

"I mean the other kind you know—in the bottle."

"No can do," said Tim May and stood with his hands behind his back, waiting for the secretary to go. Vaughn glanced back at the desk.

"No can do," repeated the Chinaman, sharply. Vaughn retreated to his room. Tim May looked at himself with a mixture of surprise and in a few moments the secretary appeared carrying his suitcase and his typewriter.

"You can tell your honored boss that I don't like the job and I'm quitting," he announced.

Tim May grinned and Adolbert left the house. When Rowan returned Tim May told him what had happened. Rowan smiled and was only partially relieved by his discovery of the report being in the pigeonhole where he had left it.

"Good boy, Tim May!" exclaimed Rowan, heartily.

"Just all tight and keep your nerve."

Two days after the conference at Lo Gwa's, Tim May opened the front door of Rowan's bungalow to sweep the porch with his broom.

As he was about to step across the threshold his eye was arrested by the sight of a yellow contraption of his slowly moving down the street with a large bag made of white flannel draped over its shoulder.

Something in the set of the other Chinaman's head and the cramped line of his shoulders caused Tim May to step swiftly back into the house and close the door after him. A second look at the approaching figure, and he dashed into Rowan's bedroom, and beckoning his master to follow him to a front window.

Shaving brush poised in mid-air, Rowan turned toward his bedroom.

The Chinaman with the bag over his shoulder was just outside the door. At a slight nod of the head, he stepped into a hall, lowering the bag to the sidewalk as he did so.

Tim May stepped up as if to stretch his back and shoulders in a brief exercise from the narrow hall, but he suddenly surveyed the hallway, its grounds, and the neighboring street with a look of alarm.

The moment the other side of his face came into view Rowan gasped and Tim May gave vent to a low, indistinct sound which was the check of the man on the sidewalk, from ear to eye, wandered an irregular, dead white scar.

"See! He bears the mark even!" cried Tim May.

"By Jove! Our friend from Honolulu!" breathed Rowan, carefully leaving out of sight behind the curtains. "Has he picked up your trail at last?"

"Who knows?" said Tim May, with fatigued indifference. "He was out to Los Angeles, I came, but that was long ago."

The Chinaman outside poked up his bag and moved off without looking back. Rowan walked to his bedroom and took a revolver from a drawer in his nightstand.

"Here," he said, "put this in your pocket."

Tim May gravely accepted the revolver, gave him some money, and

WHO put the "sleep" in Sleeping Car?

Nobody!

It was a PILL.

A pill made it possible to sleep restfully in a Pullman, and leave the train next morning with clear head, bright eyes—a full of enthusiasm for breakfast and "pep" for the new day.

Here's how: Just before you peel down the sheets, take two Bechman's Pill. This is the pleasant, sure way to attune the organs of digestion and elimination to normalcy, and thus assure a night of tranquil repose.

WOMEN May Depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I had heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I was determined to find out just what it was. I found that it realized the things I had been told to take something to relieve my pains and backaches and to help build me up. I began to take it and I was sick of and on for years and have now weighed a hundred pounds, been free of my troubles, and feel much good result that I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to every one."—Mrs. J. J. Bissett, 333 18th Ave. W., Minneapolis, Minn.

Finds a True Friend

"Every woman who has a true friend should be proud to have a true friend like the Vegetable Compound. I was Mrs. W. S. Shattuck, 1000 Franklin St., Chicago, Illinois. 'I had got fed up' because of backaches and pains and was not on my feet. Half of my time was spent in bed and I had pain in my back which was so bad that I tried everything I could think of to get well. I was told to take the Vegetable Compound I began taking it at once. I recommend it without reservation to every 98 out of every 100 women afflicted by

Public Records Should Be Sacred

Rhode Island Democrats Ought to Fight Plot Condemned by Governor and Lieutenant Governor

Mr. Charles O. Power, who has been our political observer in Rhode Island, says that great constitutional reforms have been murdered by the Republican machine in Rhode Island through its control of the Senate.

Mr. Power calls attention to the declaration of Lieutenant Governor Toppin, who has so distinguished himself in the present Rhode Island crisis. Mr. Toppin is ex-officio president of the Senate. He says in his address to the Senate:

"An offense is being perpetrated by the Republican party which is its control of the government, and this offense has so much of criminality, and it tends to create a precedent so dangerous to democracy and a proper government in our State, that as presiding officer, I wish to lay before the Senate and before the people of Rhode Island one of the most damnable plots which I have ever seen concocted against right and against the people."

"The wrong which I want to condemn and to which I want to call the attention of the Rhode Island people is what I consider a prearranged scheme to falsify the records of the Senate, and then certify those records to the Supreme Court, with the hope that said court would then have a decision on falsified records without allowing any testimony to show that the records are false."

Governor Flynn urges the Attorney General to take this conspiracy before the Grand Jury and to indict the alleged criminals. If there are any who are guilty of such a crime there ought not to be any effort spared to punish them.

There is no crime worse than the crime of corrupting public officials and falsifying public records, thus disrupting the machinery of government. Such things lead to civil ferment and civil war. They lead to slaughter!

The damage done by even the smallest breach of public faith is greater to the State than a venal murder. We hope that the Democrats, who are the intended victims of this alleged plot, will not rely upon their own efforts alone to punish it. The masses of the Republican party are just as honest and patriotic as the masses of the Democratic party, and in some States their leaders are more honest and more patriotic than the leaders of the Democratic party.

It would not be to the Democratic leaders that the people of Wisconsin would appeal for help in a conspiracy of this kind. It would be to a Republican Senator, Robert M. La Follette.

In the great State of Pennsylvania the people could probably rely more on the Republican Governor Pinchot, than upon any important Democratic leaders for protection of popular government and popular rights. But in Rhode Island the Republican organization has long been an example of all that a political organization ought not to be.

We earnestly hope that the Democratic party will call upon the Republican masses to aid, not only in the condemnation and punishment of this conspiracy, if it exists, but in obtaining a Constitutional Convention to make Rhode Island an American State.

Let Governor Flynn issue a proclamation for an extra Constitutional Convention and let those who want a convention raise the money by subscription to call the people to the voting places to choose their delegates. Let the elected delegates sit in convention and let them recommend a form of Constitution to the people, and then again call the people to the polls to decide whether or not they want the proposed Constitution. If a clear majority of the people adopt it, that is the end of the matter.

No generation can bind a future generation to submit to minority rule by constitutional provision.

They might not be able to obtain the money by State appropriation to assemble the people at the polls to hold the election of delegates to the convention, but they can obtain the adoption of the Constitution without legislative appropriation, but that money can be raised by voluntary subscription.

Warning to Profiteers

Boston Opera House was packed to the doors to hear Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist leader, discuss the labor question Friday evening. More than three thousand people were turned away because the big hall was not big enough to hold all who wanted to hear him.

Mr. Debs is a very able speaker and widely-read man. The report is that he surprised and impressed while he discussed, as he can very ably discuss, economic conditions and the history of the world and of America.

An intelligent observer, who had a comfortable lookout in the audience, said that he was surprised and impressed by his intelligence. He was not surprised at Debs' ability for he had expected it, but the close and careful attention of the great audience, with its intelligent appreciation of the discussion, did surprise him.

There is a warning in all this to men who raise the price of coal and palm oil, for coal in the winter time; who raise the price of oil, and sugar and bread and rent and clothes and carriages and freight rates, and who corrupt public servants and newspaper men and make a mockery of a government that is supposed to be "of, for and by the people."

Americans Played Good Golf

America probably lost the golf match in Great Britain because fortune ordered Oppert to play England's two great stars on the same day. The match was a physical strain was too much. Oppert defeated England's greatest player in the morning, but had not sufficient reserve to meet England's second best in the afternoon of the same day.

When we consider that the course was relatively unfamiliar to the Americans, and that the weather was so unfavorable, and that the two best players of Great Britain were in giving him the two best players of Great Britain could produce, on the same day, we can be very well satisfied with America's abilities to put his year. Boston can be particularly well satisfied with Oppert.

SEMINOLE SPELLING DEBATE

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., May 15.—Miss Moore Wilson of Kissimmee, Fla., says in her book on "The Seminole Language" that the word "sem" is a corruption of the word "sem" which means "to be" or "to exist". She also says that the word "mole" is a corruption of the word "mole" which means "to dig" or "to dig out".

Inexperienced Drivers
Editor Boston American:
Why will the authorities, who ever they may be in this case, allow persons learning to drive autos to operate on city streets? Can't they practice where there would be no danger of killing a child, as the young woman began in Salem? I have known a woman who did not know how to drive would be expected at some time during her lessons to lose control of the machine. This is just what happened with the baby close by. Inexperienced drivers should be relegated to country roads or vacant lots until they gain some degree of proficiency at the wheel.

Editor Boston American:

What is the matter with the government of this country—I mean the people? The people are supposed to be the government and the men in Washington are our servants. Then why can't the government—then mean the people—demand that Harvey be dismissed from the diplomatic service and have him remain in London and become Lord Knickerbocker Harvey?

Landlords Bar Children
Editor Helping Hand:

I am writing to you in desperation, as I am hourbroken looking for a house or flat. I have eight children, ranging in ages from two to fourteen. When I tell an owner or agent how many children I have they say it is too many. I hesitate about putting any of them in a home, but I have no other way to live up to the law. I am now staying in the owner, and we have no place to go. My husband, who is in a poorly paid position in "Cambridge" had to leave his job several hours a day, are not able to pay any high rent, but so long as we get a clean place in a respectable environment we are not looking for any improvement.

Various Offerings
Editor Helping Hand:

If the old lady asking for white gloves of cloth to hand made with will call, she is welcome to quite a few pieces. I have picked up, I also have a man's suit coat, size 34, and a brown feather hat, size 4 and 4 1/2. A railroad that three pairs of women's low shoes, size 4 and 4 1/2, a railroad that would be made over and a large (14) would one place in a respectable environment.

Has Red Spring
Editor Helping Hand:

I have that I wrote you about is still on my hands, and if T. L. has given her away I can supply Mrs. M. G. If she doesn't live too far away from Revere, as the express would cost more than the bed is worth, I would pay out of express myself if not too far.

M. G. C.
ED. NOTE—Although we are so far from requests for beds on file just now, I know there are many in need. I think Mrs. M. G. will get the bed offered by T. L. You kind offer we will hold for reply, and we will send you an address just as soon as possible.

Had Much Sickness
Editor Helping Hand:

I am a poor mother with five small children, and we have had a lot of sickness this winter. I would like to get the refrigerator offered by Mrs. O. H. P. as I need one very badly. I cannot buy one as I lost one in my little ones from sickness and am having to pay for it. In addition, my husband has been ill and unable to work for four months.

M. B. E.
ED. NOTE—Mrs. O. H. P.'s address will be sent you, and I hope it breaks the run of bad luck.

Anything to Help

Son Killed by Auto
Editor Helping Hand:

My husband earns only a very small salary and is not very well. He can only work two or three days a week, and I cannot work as I am in very delicate health. Our son was killed by an auto and makes the last of April and it makes it very hard for us. I have three girls, aged five, ten and fourteen. My husband wears a tie $2 and I wear a $5 or $6. I think our lack will change some, read readers, and then perhaps we may be able to live some needy family, too. MRS. L. W.

IN SOME WAYS WE'VE NOT CHANGED MUCH SINCE POMPEII

By Herbert Kaufman

ASTROLOGERS, who claim that the planets rule the roost, must find the stars very much out of kilter lately.

The world's all at sixes and sevens. Misunderstanding, suspicion, violence and scandal are having a wild day. The news has seldom recorded a worse score.

Religious and millennium seem equally far away this afternoon.

Excavations at Pompeii indicate how little folk have changed in essential characteristics. Pre-Christianity had its self-explosives, hysterics and profane toos. Inscriptions and wall scrawls there testify that history, as usual, is repeating itself.

Time does not notice much difference in our traits. Progress is still largely an expression of personal ingenuity and community management. Taken simply, we Americans are about as greedy and unprincipled from one century to another.

Each period is unique in sciences, machines and ambitions, but there are no novelties in sin or crime.

If deeds of evil and acts of meanness came under the copyright laws the librarian of Congress wouldn't have an extra hour's work a year.

Avarice Never Had a Conscience

Mrs. Creighton of Newark insures her nineteen-year-old brother's life for $1,000, pays the premium, and the boy promptly dies. Police say that she and her husband fed him arsenic-laden chocolate pudding, and intimate that Creighton's parents were killed in the same way.

Old stuff, when Romulus and Remus were suckling the she-wolf. Later on the removal of relatives and enemies was carried out by professional hired at fixed scales. Avarice has never had a conscience.

Published details of New York's latest murder sensation are practically a reprint of a hundred similar atrocities. A jealous husband confronts a wife with her reputed paramour. The two kill the accused man, stuff his body in a sack, throw it into the automobile, and callously take the baby along, while they dispose of the corpse. The presence of the infant alone gives a unique quirk to the affair.

Another Poor Little Rich Girl

Children are not usually dragged into such atrocities, nor, thank Heaven, frequently involved in situations like the Cooper Hewitt will litigation.

Baroness d'Erlanger, at least, introduces a rare type of mother to public notice.

Millions of dollars of her own, she is willing to draw a bar sinister across her daughter's birth record rather than use personal funds for the girl's upkeep.

There's not a self-respecting scrubwoman or seamstress in the land who wouldn't thankfully work fingers to the bone to hide a like scandal.

The Baroness will inter with she had left sleeping dogs lie, especially after Anne Hewitt is old enough to understand how and why her name was so cruelly blemished.

What tedious things people will do to get revenge!

Banana Shots and Poison Pens

A professor of psychology at Northeastern University arranges for one man to point a banana at another, while a shot is fired at the rear of the classroom.

Several eyewitnesses subsequently swore that they saw a revolver used and described the make. The first prize for unreliable observation, however, goes to a youth who wrote down the episode at the moment of occurrence and set it one hour late and four days off date.

Very interesting experiment which showed lawyers were not overbook. The law should not believe everything men claim to see.

Psychologists also warn us to put a pinch of mental salt in anonymous letters. Spite is a ruthless liar. Truth isn't always the best policy.

Therefore common sense attributes the character attacks on Mrs. Allan Ryan and other social celebrities to hatred, enmity or perverted imagination. So does psycho-analysis.

The 18th Amendment Pricks Up Its Ears

Tobacco men similarly give evidence of mental instability when they place the blame for Vorovsky's death on England, France and Italy.

As if the entente would consciously thrust a lighted brand in the international powder magazine!

Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet's assistant commissar of foreign affairs, is more reasonable when he claims Russia's right to establish a twelve-mile sovereignty limit.

England, herself, he points out, has exceeded the traditional three-mile mark in the East Indies.

The information opens up new possibilities in the rum fleet situation. Watch prohibition enforcement rigid for the fray.

Dr. Butler Speaks a Piece

Doctor Nicholas Murray Butler, sailing for Europe, pauses at the gangplank to pour hot shot and canister into the dregs, declares that they will next organize drives against free speech, free press and free religious worship, and concludes his remarks by comparing their fanatic spirit and rabid methods with those of Salem's witch burners.

The writer, lately corrected by several meticulous correspondents, in turn begs to advise Columbia's president that the aforesaid witches were hanged, not incinerated. Humiliation welcomes his distinguished company.

Their Master's Voice

Florida newspapers, aware that the honor of the Commonwealth hangs by a lash, turn upon the peonage gang, and the Legislature, overwhelmed by protests from horrid constituents, obeys its master's voice and drops the slave whip.

Even Senator Knabb's contract is cancelled. Authorities order him to return all leased convicts. The next proper move is a demand for Knabb's resignation.

THERE'S a man unfit to represent the Stars and Stripes at a dog-pound.

His official presence in Tallahassee offends the nostrils of democracy.

Fourteen members of the upper House held out for a continuance of the logging system, then read their mail and telegrams and closed the session.

It would be interesting to learn how much lumber companies contributed to the campaign expenses of these faithful servants.

Extensive free labor and protection against the emancipation proclamation should have been worth a considerable sum to the timber and turpentine ring.
